TRAVEL ENCOUNTERS— Redondo Beach, California

While those of us in Los Angeles can travel in less than an hour to the South Bay community of Redondo Beach, California, it is worth a “stayvacation” or an overnighter in the area to enjoy the day and evening activities. By doing so, one feels as though you have travelled and been away but you have none of the hassles of the airport and foreign language problems. This historic beach city whose harbor is one of the deepest in Southern California, is where Hawaiian lifeguard George Feeth brought surfing to the mainland in the early 1900s. The local government has engaged in a wonderful revitalization program for the Pier and Waterfront. Full details about the following and about other vacation opportunities are at www.VisitRedondo.com or Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, 200 N. Pacific Coast Highway, Redondo Beach, CA 90277, (800) 282-0333.

Some of the great educational and entertaining opportunities include a short trip on the 64 foot Voyager with Voyager Excursions. These regularly scheduled nature cruises give you a chance to see rich marine life including resident sea lions, birds, and, if you are lucky, dolphins and whales. They also have charters on their 144 passenger Voyager for wedding receptions, banquets, meetings, and other special occasions. And definitely take a trip on the SSV Looking Glass, a 19-passenger USCG inspected semi-submersible viewing boat. It is so great to see the fish underwater at eye level. These boat trips are available without reservations by showing up in the Redondo Beach Marina. Adults as well as children will enjoy the interactive exhibits and touching tanks at the SeaLab operated by the L A Conservation Corps.

Along the 27-mile beach strand you can bicycle, dine, paddleboat, use stand-up paddle boards, kayak, or hike scenic designated trails. On the beaches, just relax and sunbath, surf, swim, do yoga, play volleyball, or just enjoy the ocean views. Many of America’s famous movies have been filmed in the city. There are lots of annual events including the 17th Annual Redondo Beach Surf ‘N Turf Lobster Festival, 10 K Runs, Chalk Festival, Kite Festival, Art Walk, and a free summer concert series. There are free self-guided tours found in the Harbor & Pier Walking Map.

For a group, consider renting the Beach Barcycle that looks like a bar but allows you to pedal your way around while enjoying some drinks with your friends. For shoppers, the South Bay Galleria offers the standard stores as well as speciality shops or go to the Farmers’ Market for quick snacks and homemade products. There is also Riviera Village in King Harbor for bistros and boutiques. For nighttime celebrants, there are plenty of nightclubs for dancing and drinking. For a different experience, try renting a Segway with the South Bay Mobile Tours. Horseback riding enthusiasts should try trail riding in the beautiful Palos Verdes peninsula with Wagonwheel Ranch Horseback Rides..

Check out the concerts at the Redondo Beach Performing Arts Center. This venue has superb shows by singers and dancers covering a wide range of performance styles. We enjoyed Noche Mexicana 2012, a group of over 150

LINDY HOPS THE ATLANTIC FRANKIE HOPS THE LINDY

by Preston Ashbourne

As we all should remember, Charles A Lindbergh flew solo across the Atlantic Ocean between May 20 and 21, 1927 in a small plane called the Spirit of St Louis. Around this time people were doing a swing-type dance sometimes called the Hop. At a marathon a dancer called Shorty George Snowden was asked by a reporter what he was doing and he replied “the Lindy Hop”. (Hop often seems to be a synonym for dance.) This particular dance/hop partially derives from the Charleston, so it was a pretty lively dance.

In 1935 a young Lindy Hopper, Frankie Manning (1914-2009), invented the “Aerial Step”. Up to that time, the Lindy was a ballroom dance like any other, just more energetic than most. But dancers wanted to outdo each other, so Frankie did an acrobatic maneuver that consisted of rolling his partner over his back so for a moment she had NO feet on the floor, hence an “aerial”. In the many aerial steps that were created after that one, one partner (not always the girl!) is airborne for a time. It is so appropriate for a dance named for an aviator! You can see Frankie on Youtube in clips from various movies, such as the Marx brothers movie “A Day at the Races”. His aerals and other figures were exciting, acrobatic, and funny. My favorite funny step (to watch, not to do!) had the girl give her partner a “boot to the rear” and send him flying across the floor! All carefully planned dancers of all ages from the nonprofit organization Nuestras Raices, doing their annual Mexican Dance Concert. It was quite unusual to have a six-hour show for what one normally pays for a two-hour set. Homecooked food was available in the lobby at intermission.

There are plenty of fine restaurants, nice cafes, coffee shops, and quick food stands as well. Our group enjoyed every meal at: Ruby's Diner, HT Grill, Crown Plaza's Splash Bistro, Captain Kidd's Restaurant & Fish Market, Grandma's Swedish Bakery, and Bluewater Grill. Two great places to stay and eat are the Crowne Plaza and the Portofino Hotel & Marina but there are many other options for all price ranges. No one in our group had the time to try many of the other offerings but they exist if you want to fish, sail, or go boating. And, of course, there are other special events to enjoy along with so many other eateries to try. Check in with the Visitors Bureau to get their cute t-shirts, totebags, pins and other items. We look forward to returning.

and choreographed, of course. To me a sense of humor is vital to dance.

In the 1950s Frankie stopped dancing and worked for the Post Office for the next 30 years until being rediscovered and cajoled into being a teacher for the revival of Lindy style swing. He spent the last 25 or so years of his life teaching workshops around the world. I was lucky enough to attend some. He could still boogie while pushing 90! As wild and acrobatic as Lindy could be, it is still very much a ballroom sort of dance. You can see this in that he often started a dance in a sort of crouch which he described as bowing before the princess that was his partner.

By adding aerial moves to swing dancing, Frankie Manning sort of "hopped up" the Lindy Hop. Frankie, who was born 5/26/1914, left the dance floor 4/27/2009.

THANK YOU WIKIPEDIA*ST. GEORGE'S DAY
(a major Gypsy holiday)

Đurđevdan (Ђурђеџдан, pronounced [ˈd̩ʒuːrd̩ʒevdaːn], "George's day" in Serbian, Gergyovden "George's day" in Bulgarian, Jurjevo "George's" in Croatian and Bosnian or Gjurgjuvden (Ѓурѓовден) in Macedonian, is a South-Slavic religious holiday, celebrated on April 23 by the Julian calendar (May 6 by Gregorian calendar), which is the feast of Saint George and a very important Slava. He is one of the most important Christian saints in Orthodox churches: the patron saint of Slav, Georgian and Circassian Christian warriors, Cossacks, Chetniks, and armies. This holiday is attached to the tradition of celebrating the beginning of spring. Christian synaxaria hold that St. George was a martyr who died for his faith. On icons, he is usually depicted as a man riding a horse and killing a dragon. Jurjevo is mainly celebrated in the rural areas of Croatia, mostly Turopolje and Gornja Stubica whereas every Đurđevdan is celebrated all over the Serbian diaspora but mainly in Serbia, Montenegro, Bosnia Herzegovina and Macedonia. In Croatian St. George is called Sv. Juraj while in Serbian he's called Sveti Đorđe (Serbian Cyrillic: Свети Ђорђе), in Bulgarian Sveti Georgi (Cyrillic: Свети Георги) and in Macedonian Sv. Gjorgjija (Ѓорѓија). In Croatia, the Catholic version of St. George's day, Jurjevo is celebrated on April 23 by the Gregorian calendar. The tradition is mostly celebrated in northern Croatia, in Zagreb County. According to tradition this day marks the beginning of spring. The use of bonfires is similar to Walpurgis Night. In Turopolje Jurjevo involves a slavic tradition where five most beautiful girls are picked to play as Dodola goddesses dressed in leaves and sing for the village every day till the end of the holiday. Đurđevdan is also celebrated by the Gorani from the Gora region in southern Kosovo. The Gorani are a Slavic Muslim group, who converted from Orthodox Christianity to Islam during the 18th century but kept a few Serbian – Christian traditions, including Đurđevdan. The holiday has a center in and around the village of Globočica. It's also celebrated by members of the uncanonical Montenegrin Orthodox Church. Đurđevdan (Romany: Ederlezi) is also a major holiday for Roma from former Yugoslavia, whether Orthodox or Muslim. The various Balkan spellings (Herdeljez, Erdelezi) are variants of the Turkish Hıdırellez.

TRAVELING TASTEBUDS

THAT'S JUST CHEESY

Reviews of the world's cheeses by Nancy Milligan

So you want to try cheeses and learn to enjoy them. But where to begin? The cheese counter has so much! I recommend starting with something you already know something about.

Cheddar is the prevailing cheese of America (US and Canada). I believe that's because we kept our British roots going! Yes, there are regional differences but there is plenty of great cheddar buried in any supermarket along with a lot of so-so's. Start with a well-known readily available brand—try Cabot, Tillamook, and, in Southern California, Altadena Dairy. They will tend to be mild to cheese fans even when they are claiming they are sharp or mature. Try with friends. Start with 1/3-1/2 lbs for 4-5 of you with grapes or apple slices and a plain sort of cracker such as Matzoh (so the cracker doesn't compete). Branch out slowly trying Altadena's Goat Cheddar with their cow Cheddar.

If you prefer the goat, decide: is it because it is milder, or because you prefer the tang? Try to put roughly the same age together progressing from younger cheeses to older. Try to figure out what you like: texture (old vs young), aftertaste, creaminess or combinations of traits, how long the aftertaste lingers or doesn't. Move to other things, depending on what you like and your budget. Price does not say it's a great cheese or a dud cheese. Go slowly. Cow and goat Cheddars of all tastes, ages, and prices are available. Once you find a brand you like try others of that age against that. That's a start!
